GIRLS SHOW MOTHERS KITCHEN EFFICIENCY

Emery-Eckington Students Exhibit Proficiency as Cooks and Housekeepers to Delighted Audience.

Eighth grade girls of the Emery School yesterday showed their mothers their worth as chefs in the family kitchen and as keepers of the parental household. The demonstration was before some seventy mothers in the Emery School, and was the regular afternoon session of the Emery-Eckington Home and School Association.

The girls owe the success of their demonstration to Miss Emma R. Jacobson, director of domestic science in the public schools, and their own individual teacher, Miss Adelaide Davis, principal of the Emery School.

The somersault of an egg in the air and its landing on the griddle with apparent nonchalance—not with an ungraceful splashing of yellow yolk—was considered incidental to the girls of Emery and Eckington. The higher culture of cuisine and allied culinary intricacies is their aim, and, according to yesterday's demonstration, they have reached it.

The baking of biscuits, cooking of cutlets and proper boiling of potatoes are essential in the home whose bill of fare is an established item, but adventurous girls in the classes have shown an interest in individual research for original receipts and concoctions. And while the mothers sighed, somewhat, yesterday, at the efficiency of twenty century methods of frying ham and eggs, they really delighted in the fact that their girls could wield a broom with a minimum of labor to themselves—the mothers.

TREATMENT OF CHILD IS LECTURER'S TOPIC

Mrs. Vance Cheney Addresses Large Audience in Woodward & Lothrop's Auditorium.

"Think nothing, say nothing, do nothing in the presence of a child that you do not wish to see later expressed in his life. A child is the most sensitive object on God's earth, reflecting mood, state of mind and quality of character quite as completely as the sensitive plate of the camera reflects the objects before it."

This was the advice given by Mrs. Vance Cheney in a talk before the weekly meeting of the Washington League of Right Thinking and Right Living yesterday morning in the Woodward & Lothrop auditorium. An audience which filled the room listened to her lecture on the training of children. She said:

"The fundamental step in child training is parent and teacher training. There is much truth in the saying 'As the twig is bent, so will the tree incline.' Only he or she who is erect of soul can direct the child's growth steadily upward."

"Keep the child in the open until it is 16 years old before you allow it to creep into the schoolroom. Treat it as tenderly, every moment of its life, as you do a plant. Give to the child the outer air and sunshine plus the sunshine and air of love, strength, poise and cheer. Teach it the relation of the child in the world, not teach it theology—God made love, man made theology."

"Surround the child with an atmosphere of love, harmony, absolute integrity and encouragement. Train the child to think, to observe, to tell and record its observations on the world as it is, not in such an atmosphere will never become untruthful or dishonest."

CREDIT MEN URGED TO "GRAB" OUTSIDE TRADE

Federal Official Advises Merchants to Carry Activities Into Territory Contiguous to District.

The Washington Association of Credit Men was addressed yesterday by Edward A. Brand, chief of the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce of the Department of Commerce, at a luncheon in the New Exhibit Hotel. Mr. Brand's speech dealt particularly with an endorsement of efforts of Washington business men to extend their trade in territory contiguous to the District and also to extend that territory.

"Washington should capture its share of the near-by shopping trade," he said. "I have often heard the statement made in some sections that retail prices of commodities in Washington are higher than in some other cities in this locality. Now, it seems to me that it is up to the business men here to dissipate this idea. It is certainly not my experience that the retail prices are higher."

"The Nation's Capital should be made the playground for business and social gatherings of every description. I am convinced that your local associations are doing much to secure these conventions." The meeting was the periodical luncheon session of the credit association and was attended by many of the members.

WOULD STANDARDIZE TEACHING OF MUSIC

Parent-Teachers Wish to Give High School Students Credit for Course on Entering College.

A more uniform system of teaching music in the public schools of the District has been suggested by the District of Columbia Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Association. Action to standardize music teaching was urged on the Board of Education by resolutions adopted in a meeting held Tuesday evening at the Raleigh Hotel.

A scheme for the improvement of instruction in music in the public schools which proposes to place music teachers on the same basis as teachers of mathematics, language, or other studies, and also to examine into their fitness at frequent intervals, was set forth in the resolutions adopted, which followed a talk by Mrs. M. Von Unschuld on the subject, "Hints and Advice to Mothers Concerning the Musical Education of Their Children."

It was urged in the resolutions that the high school curriculum in music should be advanced to allow graduates to be admitted to college with a musical credit of one unit for their high school education.

Miss Katherine A. Pritchett, State agent of the Department of Agriculture in Maryland, told how 700 girls had been organized into a great scheme for lightening housework and making better homes. She said:

"Nearly 700 girls have been organized into clubs during the last spring and summer months. They have been instructed in making labor-saving devices, in textiles, gardening, poultry husbandry, and canning fruits and vegetables which would otherwise have been wasted. This work has been organized in six counties and there is still sufficient money to pay half the salary of a county agent in three more counties."

Show Work of Colored Children.

An exhibit of articles of industry made on the playgrounds for colored people in the District public schools will be opened today in the Myrtilla Miner Normal School, Georgia avenue and Euclid street northwest. The exhibit is under the direction of Miss Anita J. Turner, assistant director of the playgrounds.
